United Hebrew Congregation, 540 South Sixth Street. Terre Haute, Indiana 47807 (812) 232-5988. "In 1845 David Arnold and others purchased a piece of land at First Street and Eighth Avenue in Terre Haute for a burial ground. This was followed in 1849 by the formation of a burial society, the beginning of a communal and religious Jewish life in Terre Haute. In 1858 the burial society formally organized as a Jewish congregation. ... In 1934 the two Terre Haute congregations merged administratively, creating the United Temple. Later the name changed to United Hebrew Congregation, still our name. Reform and Orthodox worship, Religious School and Hebrew Schools were provided using both buildings." [September 2005]
