and list of Jewish residents. This village in Sandomierz County, Świętokrzyskie Voivodeship, in south-central Poland is the seat of the administrative district called Gmina Klimontów with a population of 2,000. Founded by Jan Zbigniew Ossoliński in 1604, Klimontów was the birthplace of Bruno Jasieński. During 1914 and 1915, bloody WWI battles here between Austrian and Russian troops created economic difficulties for the village. 1921 population: 6000 dropped to 4500 in 1939 as Jews fled the coming Nazi onslaught and immigrated. The population fell to 2200 by 1946 after the extermination of the Jewish population; Jews were sent on October 30 to Treblinka.
