The unlandmarked Progressive/Reform cemetery was established the beginning of the 19th century. The isolated urban flat land has no sign or marker. Reached by turning directly off a public road, access is entirely closed with a continuous fence and locking gate. The pre-WWII size is 0.12 ha, now "smaller" because of the apartment buildings. No gravestones are visible. The cemetery contains no known mass graves. A private individual owns property used for apartment buildings. Adjacent property is residential. It was vandalized during World War II. No maintenance. No structures exist. No threats.
